1. In the evening of 22 April 1950, a 500 h.p. emergency diesel engine exploded in the electric power plant of the 3 Maj Shipyard at Rijeka. The engine, which was built in 1912 had been under repair for some time. The explosion took place at the moment when the engine was to be tested.
2. Damage caused by the explosion was great, although there were no casualties. It is significant to note that authorities did not take any steps to find the person responsible for the act, which has been the general practice in similar cases.
